

Abstract

The invention relates to a data carrier (1) having a semiconductor chip (5). In order to prevent an attacker from determining secret data of the chip (5) from intercepted signal patterns of the chip (5), security-relevant operations are performed only with commands or command strings of the operating program whose use does not permit the processed data to be inferred from the signal patterns.

DEUTSCHE
PATENT- UND
MARKEN- AUSSTELLUNG
FRANKFURT
1972
1041120